OUTLOOK AND STRATEGY

The Philippine equities index remained below the critical 6,550 to 6,600 zone of resistance level in June due to apprehensions over more rate hikes from the Federal Reserve compounded by the slump in China's economy. The Fed kept interest rates steady at its meeting last month but still delivered a hawkish tone by projecting two more rate hikes in 2023, given the sticky core inflation and resilient labor market. While the Fed's terminal rate for the year points to two more rate hikes, the market is only pricing in one rate increase this year, with rate cuts starting as soon as early next year. In contrast, Fed Chair Powell doesn't expect a rate cut until inflation comes down meaningfully and significantly, and that can still take more than a year. Meanwhile, China's factory activity in June weakened for a third month, while non-manufacturing activity was at its weakest since Beijing ended its strict "Zero Covid" policy late last year. The latest data points to an erratic recovery in the world's second-largest economy as the growth momentum vanishes. Note that China's economy has a strong correlation with the ASEAN economies, and such weakness in June drags the region's economy. On the local scene, the Bangko Sentral ng Pilipinas (BSP) kept the policy rate unchanged for the second straight meeting at 6.25% yesterday. The news as this was widely anticipated with the interest rate differential versus the Fed Funds rate kept at 100bps. Meanwhile, the monetary board reduced the reserve requirement for banks by 250 bps as monetary authorities have reiterated that they would rather reduce the reserve requirement than cut interest rates as the latter June further weakened the Philippine Peso. Month-on-month, the benchmark PSEi finished almost unchanged at 6,468. (source: PAPA Sec)

Forecast/Outlook: While we expect the market to trade sideways barring any major catalyst in the near-term, we recommend to continue adding deep value stocks which are market leaders and offering clear growth trajectory. The fundamentals are solid, and this may provide some support, particularly on the valuation side with the PSEi trading only at 13x price-to-earnings. We continue to favor high-quality but deep-value names that can weather an uncertain operating environment like this and benefit under the sustained reopening of the economy. FY23E PSEi earnings growth forecast of 15% YoY, 12-month forward target (from a bottom-up approach) is 7-400 to 7,800pts. The bulk of the upside should come from the conglomerate, property, and banking sectors. (Source: Maybank Securities)

Fund Strategy and Considerations

For 2023, on the back of a positive outlook, re-opening of other economies, easing of mobility restrictions, and recovery target plans of the economy, the fund considers slowly shifting to 90% common shares and 10% preferred shares and REITs target mix if the opportunity arises. The key strategy is stock picking favoring sectors that will potentially perform well this 2023 given the macroeconomic outlooks. The bulk of the upside should come from the conglomerate, property, and banking sectors. The derating of the PSEi in 2022 as a result of the high inflationary environment and weak PHP has opened a BUYING window for several quality stocks with strong economic moats and multi-year earnings growth profiles. We prefer stocks with significant exposures to company benefitting from improved mobility and domestic consumption. The fund will retain its portfolio parameters and diversified equity selection with a preference for index issues with consistent historical dividend payments, strong fundamentals, and less impact on business brought by the COVID-19 pandemic, high inflation, weakness of the Philippine Peso, and oil price volatility due to the Russia-Ukraine war. The Fund will maintain exposures to high-yielding and highly tradeable issues for liquidity requirements. Lastly, fresh or additional cash inflow will help in the strategic investment execution of the fund.
